Carlton R-9 School

We achieve more
when we work together.

Carlton R-9 School

Carlton School educates children from Reception to Year 9.

The school has a strong commitment to engaging curriculum, student well being and working in partnership with the broader community.

High expectations of students and staff have facilitated growth in the core subject areas of Literacy and Numeracy. Carlton School prides itself on recognizing the different abilities students bring with them and provides well resourced alternative pathways to include and celebrate these talents. By marrying a strong focus on the core curriculum areas of literacy and numeracy with well-developed specialist subjects areas such as Art, Design and Technology, Computing, Enterprise, Music and Physical Education, Carlton School enjoys a culture of engaging and relevant school life.

Carlton's endeavor to provide the highest possible educational outcomes for its students is driven by a commitment to securing more choices for their future.

History

Carlton School was opened in 1968. In 1998 the Year 8/9 middle school began in an effort to retain students that were not attending High School after their Primary School graduation. The school's respected Enterprise program began the same year. In 2003 Carlton was officially reclassified as an Aboriginal School. In 2005 a major upgrade of the school's facilities took place. Administration areas were extensively upgraded along with the library and ICT suite, kitchen, Enterprise Woodworking Shed, classrooms and the main thoroughfares of the double storey teaching building. Also in 2005 the Learning Together program began delivering an early literacy program to Carlton families with children from 0-3 years of age. Carlton has an ongoing commitment to regularly upgrading infrastructure and equipment and ensuring teaching staff and students are well resourced.

Our Values

Curriculum

Literacy and Numeracy are a major focus at

Carlton School. Accelerated Literacy has been a whole school initiative adopted in recent years that has produced outstanding results. Art,

Design and Technology, Computing, Music,

Enterprise and Physical Education are delivered by specialist teachers. Curriculum resources and staff training and development are regularly augmented.

Teaching

We have quality, dedicated teachers with a caring attitude towards all students. We seek continuous improvement in teaching methodology through staff training and development. Staff encourage and reward children for their efforts to persist and improve with their learning. A "high expectations" culture exists at Carlton.

School Environment

Carlton has a friendly, welcoming and caring environment. Good manners, behaviour and respect for others are important aspects of Carlton. Wider community participation is actively sought.
